AN CALA

Location: Tongue

Client: WildLand

An Cala forms part of the wider WildLand development in the Scottish Highlands, providing high-quality family accommodation inspired by the simplicity of traditional rural buildings. Designed as a contemporary interpretation of a classic Highland barn, the building blends seamlessly with its natural surroundings while offering modern, flexible living spaces.

3b Construction delivered the project using a combination of off-site manufactured timber and structural steel components, allowing for efficient construction and exceptional build quality. Manufacturing key elements off site ensured precision, reduced programme time and minimised disruption within the remote Highland setting.

The project demonstrates 3b Construction's expertise in modern methods of construction, combining innovative off-site manufacturing with high-quality craftsmanship. The result is a robust, sustainable building that complements WildLand's long-term vision for conservation, responsible development and exceptional visitor accommodation.
