

3b

KEEPERS

Location: Highlands

Client: WildLand

Keepers Lodge forms part of the wider WildLand development in the Scottish Highlands, providing high-end holiday accommodation designed to complement the surrounding landscape. Inspired by the area's traditional vernacular architecture, the building combines timeless design with modern construction methods to create a contemporary yet sympathetic addition to the estate.

3b Construction delivered the project using an innovative off-site manufacturing approach, producing the structural components at its own manufacturing facility before transporting them to site for installation. This modern method of construction improved build quality, reduced programme time and helped overcome the logistical challenges of building in a remote Highland location. Added challenges that all materials had to be reclaimed and natural yet meet modern requirements. 3b construction delivers high-quality stone masonry that blends durability with timeless craftsmanship.

The project showcases 3b Construction's expertise in off-site manufacturing, precision engineering and sustainable construction. By combining factory-manufactured structural systems with high-quality on-site finishing, Keepers Lodge delivers exceptional accommodation while supporting WildLand's long-term vision for conservation and responsible development.

